What's the difference between a Brazilian and Hollywood (Back, Sac and Crack) wax?

Answer: The terms have been used interchangeably, but there are differences. Brazilian waxes often leave a small strip, triangle or oval shape piece of hair in the front, while taking off all the hair in between, all the way to the back of your bum. Hollywood (BSC) waxing style removes all of the hair, from the front all the way to the back.

Names are often created at salons and spas so that you know how much you're paying, and they book the right amount of time while having an idea of much hair you're looking to remove. Just waxing the bikini line is much less work and doesn't require as much time or product as waxing all of the hair. So the price points vary for these different styles.

While there are a lot of names or styles for bikini waxes, most people determine for themselves how much hair they want left or removed. You don't need to be locked into any one kind of bikini wax, just go with your personal preference.
